

World's Best Suites

The St. Regis New York

A BELOVED BEAUX ARTS LANDMARK, THE ST. REGIS NEW YORK WAS BUILT BY JOHN JACOB ASTOR IN 1904, AND ITS BEAUTIFUL GUEST ROOMS offer high ceilings, carved crown moldings and wainscoting, Waterford crystal chandeliers, and marble bathtubs. Among its offerings, The St. Regis New York (www.starwood.com/stregis) provides visitors with a unique array of world-class suites to choose from.

The most discerning travelers may request the Presidential Suite, which is an approximately 3,500-square-foot, three-bedroom suite fashioned in the style of a grand Fifth Avenue apartment and featuring a large foyer with checkerboard marble floors, Fromental wall coverings, and hand-painted wallpaper that leads to the formal dining room, living room, wood-paneled library, and bedrooms. In both the dining and living rooms, framed mirrors conceal flat-screen televisions, and there is a master bedroom with a canopied king bed, a second bedroom with two double beds (which can be fashioned into a king bed), three and a half bathrooms, and a full kitchen. A library, decorated in rusts, tans, and greens contains literature, maps, and objets d'art, and billowing silk curtains showcase the suite's floor-to-ceiling windows. Guests will appreciate exquisite views of Central Park, Fifth Avenue, and 55th Street, full access to the hotel's fitness center and spa, and 24-hour butler services.

In addition to the palatial Presidential Suite, the hotel offers the opulently decorated two-bedroom Royal Suite with stunning views of Central Park, and the spacious Imperial Suite, boasting three bedrooms, three full bathrooms, two powder rooms, a dining room that seats eight to 10, a study, and a full kitchen.

Additional offerings include a designer range of two-bedded suites including the Christian Dior Suite, Tiffany Suite, Orient Suite, and the Bottega Veneta Suite.

The legendary St. Regis New York butler service is now at the disposal of all of their guests with E-Butler, an innovative PDA application allowing visitors to interact with the hotel's butlers and concierge as never before. ●
