

Editors' CHOICE

Savoy Baur en Ville

THERE ARE NOT MANY HOTELS LEFT IN THE WORLD that are quite as special as the Savoy Baur en Ville (www.savoy-zuerich.ch) in Zurich, primarily because of its management team, husband and wife Manfred and Christina Hörger, who watch over every detail with Swiss care and efficiency. Mr. Hörger's style most closely resembles that of a present-day Cesar Ritz, as he maintains the highest standards in a small but superb hotel, which is well known as one of the finest in the world.

Most employees have been with the hotel for more than 20 years and continue to maintain attention to every detail.

The two hotel restaurants – The Baur for international cuisine and Orsini for Italian cuisine – are known throughout Zurich as two of the best restaurants, an unusual accolade for a hotel.

There are no royal or presidential suites but guests will feel like royalty in the elegant and sophisticated hotel suites, which are cozy yet equipped with every modern technological convenience available.

If there was an award for class, guest attention, kindness, efficiency, and superb hotelmanship, the Savoy and the Hörgers would deserve it.

We don't say this lightly, but if you visit the Savoy you will agree: In this modern age, the Savoy remains at the top of its game, combining convenience, excellence, and superb taste to meet every guest's need. This is the third time we've used superb but that's simply because it is. ●

Clockwise from upper left: Christina and Manfred Hörger; the facade of the Savoy Baur en Ville on the Paradeplatz in Zurich; Orsini restaurant; one of the Savoy's cozy suites; and The Baur restaurant

